THE WRECK OF THE SHIP LIVING AGE, OF BOSTON -The Bowing particulars of the loss of this vessel, (before briefly reported,) is from a letter from Captain Holmes to menning, the 28th December, for New York. We had thick, rainy weather, with strong breezes from the northward and eastward, increasing occasionally to fresh gales, and were not able to take any observations. At 5 e'check on Monday morning, the 1st of January, we judged ourselves in the latitude of the Prata Shoals, 25 miles to the westward of them, the ship steering S. S. W., going 10% knots, when she struck with tremendous force on a reef, and brought up instantly. The sea breaking over her stern, carried away the boats, swept the decks of everything not lashed down, and unshipped the rudder tearing the tillar down through the poop deck, where it tore away everything it came in contact with, as the rudder swung from side to side. The stern was soon stove in by the force of the sea, and the ship filled and fell over on her larbourd side. When daylight appeared, as the after part of the ship was fast breaking up, all hands were employed to lighten the ship forward, by throwing over the chain cables, and everything we could get at. The force rigging was cut away ann the mant fell over the side. This lightened the forward part of the ship so much that ahe was forced further on the reef, so that the bow was in 9 feet of water. The heavy sea filling up over the stern, fore it to pieces and she settled down aft. For some days the sea continued to make a complete breach over the ship, tearing cut the bulwards and sweeping away the cabin and hours on dock. On Wednerday it cleared up, and a small lock over the ship, tearing cut the bulwards and sweeping away the cabin and hours on dock. On Wednerday it cleared up, and a small lock of the bulwarks and ether materials; also a raft of spars and planks. On Saturday the weather having become more moderate, the boat and raft were launched and loaded with provisions; the mate and nine men succeeded in getting them through the breakers and safely landed on the listand. They were unable to return to the ship for three days. They iound a well of brackish water, but the leisand wa serning, the 28th December, for New York. We had blok, rainy weather, with strong breezes from the north-ore leaving the wreck an English ship was cast on the reef about nine miles from us, and the were seen to leave her in the long boat, steering tos the coast of China. This proved afterwards to be hip Tom Bowline, from Shanghas to Lundon. They do na small island not far from Hong Kong, when were attacked by pirates, and the captain and murdered, except two men, who had concealed selves, and afterwards succeeded in getting to Keng.

serew murdered, except two men, who had concealed themselves, and afterwards succeeded in getting to Bong Keng.

Some few days after we landed from the wreck a ship passed in right, and seeing the wreck and people on the island making signals of distress, attempted to rescue un, but received so much injury in approaching the island that she was obliged to abandon us and bear away towards Manils. The shores of the island were strewn with pieces of wreck, and no doubt many missing vessels bound to and from China have been lost there. Flucting as mall Chinese boat which had drifted on the island, we fitted it up in the best way we could, and on the 15th February the mate with four men embarked in it for Hong Kong, where they arrived safely on the 17th. One of her Majesty's steamers was immediately despatched to our recoue, and to search for the crew of the 7om Bowline. But, in the meantime, the ship that had endeavored to recoue us had arrived at Manila, where the British steamer Shanghae, Captain Munroe, ready to depart for Hong Kong, immediately proceeded to sea and kindly touched at the island on the 19th February to relieve us. We were all treated with the greatest kindness by Captain Munroe and his officers, in aiding us to get to the steamer from the island, and while we were subcard of her, for which they will always have the heartisk gratitude of all of us. Before cetting on coard the Shanghes snother steamer hove in sight, which preved to be the man-of-war steamer sent from Hong Kong to our relief. As we passed the wreck of the Living Age we could see that her decks were broken up and the packages of tes washing out of her. We were safely famed at Hong Kong on the 19th February, on the fifty-farst day after our shipwreck.

Theatres and Exhibitions.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—The second representation of Desizetti's favorite opera of "Lucia di Lammermoor" is announced for this evening, with Madame Lagrange as Lacy Ashten, supported in the other leading characters by Signori Rafaelle Mirste, Morelli, Arnoldi and Gasparent, This cast can hardly fall in drawing a large assemblage of the musical people of this city.

NIBLO'S GARDEN—ENGLISH OPERA.—The Pyne and Harmson Opera Company, with a full chorus and an inassed orchestra, appears to night in Donizetti's comic opera, "The Daughter of the Regiment"—Miss Louiss Pyne as Marie, kies Pyne as the Marchloness, Mr. Bornei as Sulpizio and Mr. Herrison as Tonio. Miss L. Pyne is a great lavorite, and will likely draw large houses.

BROADWAY THRAFRE.—The benefit of Miss Fanny Vin-dietts of a "Morning Call," Mr. Davenport and Muss Vining appearing.

Bowkey Theatre.—The benefit of Miss C. Hiffert takes place this evening, when three very attractive pieces will be played. The first is the "Stage Struck," with a geod cast, the next is the drama entitled "The Knights of the Cross," Mesars Cony, Webb, Johnston and Mrs.
Teomans in the leading parts. The moral tale of enchantment, called the "Seven Temptations," will conclude the amusements.

BURTON'S THEATRE.—The annual benefit of Miss Raymond, who is a great favorite and fine actress, is anmented for this evening. For the first time in this theatre, the comedy of the "Ladies" Battle" will be played, Fisher. Jordan, Marebant and Miss Raymond as principals. Miss McCarthy will sing the "Rod, White and Blue." The "Duel in the Dark" will follow, and the "Fillibuster" concludes alt. Burton in two characters.]

Wallack's Theatre.—Two much admired comedies are announced for this evening. The first is "The Fast Ban," Brougham, Vincent, Chippendale, Miss Roas Benmett, and Mrs Stephens appearing. The next feature is the very successful comedy of "Elopements in High Life," which embraces in its cast most of the leading artists attached to the establishment. To-morrow night the great comedian, Blake, takes his benefit.

LAVARGE'S MSTROPOLITAN.—Mr. Hackett appears tonight in Snakspeare's nistorical play called "King Henry IV." as Faltan. As this piece is considered the best of Shakspeare's come for productions, and as Mr. Hackett is evelebrated in his acting of Faltan, it is very probable the house will be crowded. The laughable farce of "My Meighbor's Wife" will conclude the amusements of the evenume.

American Muserum.—The mew drams sailed "The Sons

American Museum.—The new drama salled "The Sons of the Republic," with Messrs. Clarks, Munroe, Hadaway, and Miss. Mestayer in the leading parts, and the farse of the "Good for Nothing," are selected for the afterneon, and the same pieces will be played in the evening. The museum is doing well under the government of Mr. Greenwood.

Wood's Minstrans.—"The Wandering Minstrel," a "Concert à la Jullien," and a great variety of negro minstreley, are announced for this evening.

Bucklay's SERENADERS continue to be prosperous in their opera performances—"Norma" for to-night. We perceive they are about to produce American operas, having advertised for writers and musical composers of mative talent.

PERHAM'S MINSTREES.—Overtures, choruses, plaintive megro melodies, instrumental pieces, dancing, and the burierque Baby Show, are the features for this evening. Shifts's Panorama can be seen by calling at the Chinese Reems, where it is exhibited every evening.
